Key Profitability Drivers in 1H 2025

Continued growth in fee income and higher trading profits and investment income more than off-set declining interest income, driving strong performance in 1H 2025 surpassing record-high 1H 2024 results

Net Profit Bridge (1H 2025 vs 1H 2024)

- ◆ NII: Declining interest rates weighing on interest income partly off-set by deposit base downsizing resulting in even faster reduction in interest expense
- ◆ NFC: Continuous growth in asset management fees and higher debt underwriting and other financial markets related fees (incl. custody)
- ◆ Other Income: Higher trading and investment income and positive upward derivatives revaluation
- ◆ Personnel Expense: Steady increase amid further investments into top talent, mainly in rapidly expanding asset management business
- ◆ Admin Expense: Greater outsourcing of IT and similar support services, other administrative expenses (e.g. marketing, communication) broadly unchanged
- ◆ Cost of Risk: Good asset quality (NPLs at historical lows) positively affecting risk cost

Operating Environment

Czech GDP growth continues to accelerate driven by household consumption boosted by growing real wages. External demand remains subdued amid sluggish industrial output in Europe and uncertainty in int’l trade

- ◆ Czech economy expanded by 1.1% YoY in 2024 with growth markedly accelerating into 2025 (+2.4% YoY in 2Q 2025) driven by increasing household consumption, supported by growing real wages, and softer than anticipated impact of U.S tariffs (estimated to reduce growth by 0.3 to 0.4 p.p. in 2025 and 2026)
- ◆ Inflation is converging towards, but – despite relatively tight monetary policy – remains above, central bank’s 2% target amid higher cost of living (rents) and rising prices of food and services
- ◆ Tight labour market supports real wage growth with average inflation adjusted wage expected to return to pre-pandemic levels in 2026
- ◆ Czech Republic has consistently had the lowest unemployment rate in the EU and this will likely continue despite sluggish growth in Germany and geopolitical uncertainty

Financial Performance

Net Interest Income

Declining interest rates weighed on net interest income. Loan book growth and redirection of liquidity from central bank placements into government bonds helped preserve net interest margin

- ◆ Interest income declined by 32% YoY due to considerable (~CZK65bn) reduction in (excess) liquidity placements with central banks
- ◆ Decrease in liquidity placements (repos) was accompanied by conscious deposit base downsizing (~CZK50bn), the main factor driving down interest expense (-42% YoY)
- ◆ As a result, net interest income declined by 21% YoY
- ◆ Loan book growth and redirection of a portion of free liquidity into higher yielding government bonds helped preserve net interest margin

- ◆ 54% YoY growth in net fees and commissions primarily driven by increasing asset management fees and higher underwriting commissions
- ◆ Asset management fees increased 70% YoY on the back of continued AuM growth (+85% YoY) and accounted for over two thirds of gross fee and commission income
- ◆ Strong domestic bond market dynamics was reflected in 21% YoY increase in securities underwriting and placement commissions
- ◆ Greater client activity on financial markets resulted in 17% YoY increase in brokerage and other markets related fees
- ◆ Expanding loan book contributed to 25% YoY increase in lending related fees

- ◆ Personnel expense up by 12% YoY driven by new hires primarily in expanding asset management business, tight labour market and persistent wage inflation
- ◆ Administrative expense increased by 13% YoY due to greater outsourcing of IT services which was partly off-set by lower deposit insurance cost and mandatory resolution fund contributions
- ◆ Strong top line performance translates into high operating efficiency despite increasing opex – long-term average for Czech banking sector’s cost-to-income ratio oscillates around 50%

Asset Growth and Structure

Following its peak in summer 2024, balance sheet growth reversed with excess cash trimmed down. Liquidity is now increasingly placed into government bonds. Loan book continues to grow steadily

- ◆ Peaking in summer 2024, balance sheet shrank by 7% YoY as excess cash has been pro-actively reduced since interest rate cycle reversed
- ◆ Free liquidity is increasingly placed into government bonds (Czech, Slovak and – to a smaller extent – Romanian), a higher yielding, yet equally liquid, alternative to central bank placements (repos)
- ◆ Loan book expanded by 9% YoY with corporate loans up by 6% YoY and margin loans up by 36% YoY, respectively
- ◆ Securities grew by 22% YoY with additions into both banking and trading book. Small dip between Dec 2024 and Jun 2025 is related to redemptions and will be topped up
- ◆ Other assets as at 30 Jun 2025 include ~CZK30bn due from clients related to J&T ARCH subscriptions with a corresponding liability in the bank’s balance sheet

Asset Quality

NPLs declining in both absolute and relative terms, converging to Czech banking sector average for corporate lending

- ◆ Non-performing loans declined in both absolute and relative terms with NPL Ratio converging to Czech banking sector average for corporate lending (some defaults occurring in 3Q 2025 put the ratio back to the sector average)
- ◆ Increase in Stage 2 loans in 1H 2025 is not an indication of systematic deterioration in portfolio quality but rather reflects granting of several-month extension on certain loans due to technical delay in repayment
- ◆ Consolidated figures affected by residual portfolio of J&T BANKA’s leasing subsidiary whose operations have been discontinued
- ◆ Decline in ECLs in 1H 2025 mainly attributable to reduction in non-performing loans, NPL coverage is consistently maintained at above 50% of non-performing loans

- ◆ Term deposits decreased by 24% YoY while current accounts bearing minimal or zero interest rate increased by 7% YoY, respectively

Resolution and MREL Considerations

Multiple point of entry resolution strategy. MREL ranks pari passu with senior unsecured debt, subordination is not required

- Multiple point of entry resolution strategy approved for J&T FINANCE GROUP with two resolution entities: J&T BANKA (individually) and 365.bank (consolidated)
- J&T BANKA is the point of entry for resolution – any losses would be recognized locally and the bail-in would take place at J&T BANKA level with no recourse to any other member of J&T FINANCE GROUP
- Czech National Bank is the resolution authority for J&T BANKA and sets out its MREL requirements
- No subordination requirement for J&T BANKA’s MREL eligible instruments (only applies to five largest Czech banks)
