Discovering Kerry

A visit to Ireland's Kingdom county is bound to take your breath away, with glorious coastlines moulded by the mighty sea and magnificent mountain ranges that form some of the country's most dramatic scenery.

In the north, take a leisurely stroll down the soft sands of Ballybunion beach and look up to the majestic ruins of Ballybunion Castle standing proudly on the cliff. Explore Tralee, the capital town where past and present blend seamlessly. Wander through the vibrant streets, visit Kerry County Museum and relax in the serene Tralee Town Park. Savour the rich heritage that makes Tralee a memorable destination.

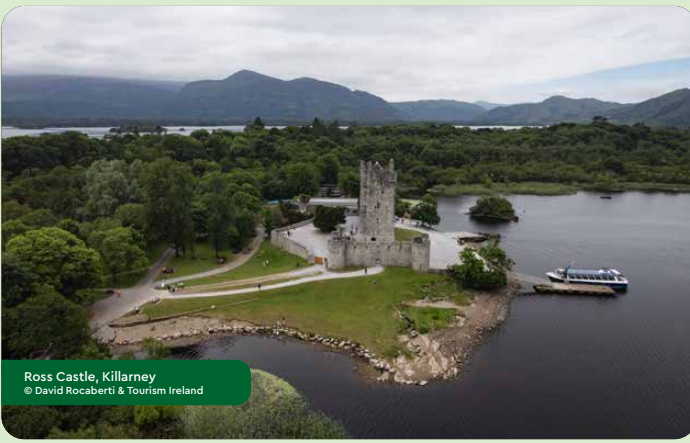

Discover the untamed beauty of Corca Dhuibhne (the Dingle Peninsula) with the 48km Sill Ceann Sléibhe (Slea Head Route), ideal for a scenic cycle or drive. Watch the waves at picturesque Com Dhíneol (Coomenole Beach). Stop and snap some pictures of the iconic triangular cliffs rising impressively from the sea at Cé Dhún Chaoin (Dunquin Pier) or hop on a ferry over to the beautiful Na Blascaodai (Blasket Islands) where you can explore the secluded beaches, hike along rugged mountain trails and wander through the abandoned village where many famous Irish writers were reared. End your road trip on a high in Daingean Uí Chúis (Dingle), a colourful seaside town with a rich musical scene.

Explore the mountainous Iveragh Peninsula, dominated by the mighty Macgillicuddy Reeks. Climb Ireland's highest peak, Carruntuohil, standing at an impressive 1,038 metres. From the top, take in the stunning views of Killarney National Park, a haven of rolling hills, shimmering lakes and wildlife. Roam through the still forests or wander the wonderful gardens of Muckross House, a 19th century Victorian mansion. Closer to the town centre, Killarney House and Gardens is the perfect spot for a stroll.

Killarney is the ideal starting point to explore the famous Ring of Kerry, 179km of breathtaking landscapes and fascinating heritage, including Derrynane House where Daniel O'Connell once lived. On your journey take time to look up, for a true wonder awaits when darkness falls. Much of South Kerry is an International Dark Sky Reserve, where you can clearly see the stars glimmering in beautiful constellations by the company of the moon. Take a break from driving and board a boat out to Sceilg Mhichíl (Skellig Michael). This UNESCO World Heritage Site features steep craggy paths, leading to an ancient monastery that offers panoramic views of the crashing sea.

Promoting biodiversity and heritage conservation, Ireland's first Marine National Park, Páirc Náisiúnta na Mara, Clárar, includes various islands off the Kerry coast, Sceilg Mhichíl, the Kerry Head Shoal, Inch Sand Dunes, the uplands of Mount Brandon, and the majestic Conor Pass.

Tralee & North Kerry
With the majestic backdrop of the Slieve Mish mountains, Tralee gets its name from the River Lee which flows into Tralee Bay. The castle demesne, now the Tralee Town Park covers 35 acres and is famous for its Rose Garden and the Rose Wall that contains the names of every Rose who has contested the Rose of Tralee Festival since 1959. The park is also home to Siamsa Tíre Theatre & Arts Centre and adjacent to the park is the Kerry County Museum. The town centre is easily accessible by foot and has a selection of wonderful cafés, pubs, and restaurants to suit all tastes. To the west of the town centre is the Tralee Bay Wetlands ECO & Activity Park. Blennerville Windmill, 3km from the town centre, is a dominant landmark in Tralee Bay.

About 13km west of Tralee is Fenit, where you can take a stroll on the harbour and enjoy some fine seafood restaurants. Further north is Ardfer, the site of a 6th century monastery, three medieval churches and several grave slabs along with Ardfer Friary. Continue to Banna Strand, a 7km stretch of sandy beach, and north to the coastal village of Ballyheigue, the starting point for Kerry Head with 18km of stunning views of the North Kerry coastline. Ballyduff is home to Rattoo Round Tower on the grounds of an ancient monastery.

Ballybunion, is a coastal town with impressive beaches, cliff walks, golf courses, seaweed baths and The Bromore Cliffs. Tarbert, at the very northern tip of Kerry, is where you will find Tarbert Court House & Jail Museum and Tarbert House. Listowel is the birthplace of some of North Kerry's most prominent writers and home to Listowel Castle, Kerry Writers' Museum, St. John's Theatre and Arts Centre, the Lartigue Monorial and Museum, and the Garden of Europe. To the east of Tralee, visit Castleside and Crag Cave to experience an indoor wonderland of stalagmites and stalactites.

The Kingdom of Kerry Greenways are a welcome addition for outdoor enthusiasts in North Kerry. The Tralee to Fenit greenway is 13.6km while the Listowel to Abbeyfeale greenway is 16km. Both sections offer walkers and cyclists the opportunity to discover the beautiful rolling green countryside of North Kerry.

The Dingle Peninsula
Jutting out into the wild Atlantic, Corca Dhuibhne (the Dingle Peninsula) is an area of outstanding beauty with rugged cliffs and seaside trails. On the southern shore of the Peninsula is Daingean Uí Chúis (Dingle Town) with its winding streets, bright colourful shops, and vibrant atmosphere, it is a hub of literary and creative culture.

An Chonair (The Conor Pass), Ireland's highest mountain pass provides the most dramatic and scenic way of crossing from the north to south coast of the Peninsula. Stop at the laby to safely capture a memorable photo opportunity!

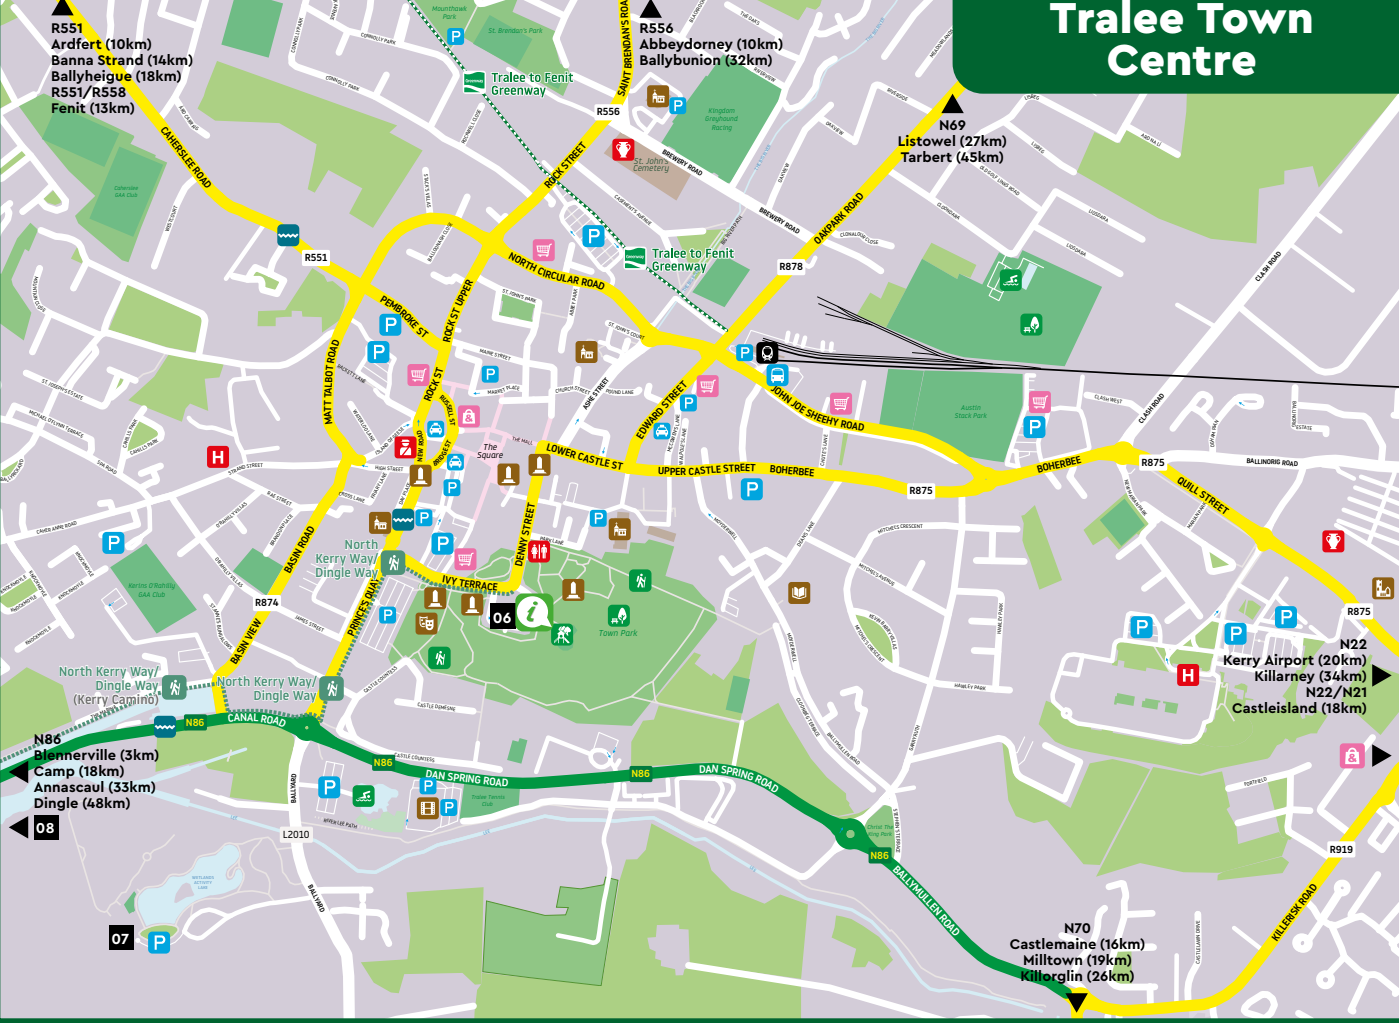

Ceann Sléibhe (Slea Head) is positioned at the westernmost part of the Peninsula. The Slea Head driving route is a 48km circular route beginning and ending in Dingle Town. As the route is narrow and winding, it is recommended that it is travelled in a clockwise direction. Enjoy amazing close-up views of Na Blascaodai (The Blasket Islands), and distant views of the Na Scealgá (Skellig Islands) on the western horizon. Discover the many archaeological and heritage sites along the way.

Na Blascaodai (The Blasket Islands) lie some 6km beyond the most westerly tip of the Dingle Peninsula. The largest of the nine islands, An Blascaod Mór (which is open to visitors) was finally abandoned in 1953 when the last twenty-two people living on the island were moved to the mainland. No other island community of this size has yielded such literary wealth, producing world-renowned writers who documented island life in their beloved Irish language. There are various boat operators that offer trips to the island.

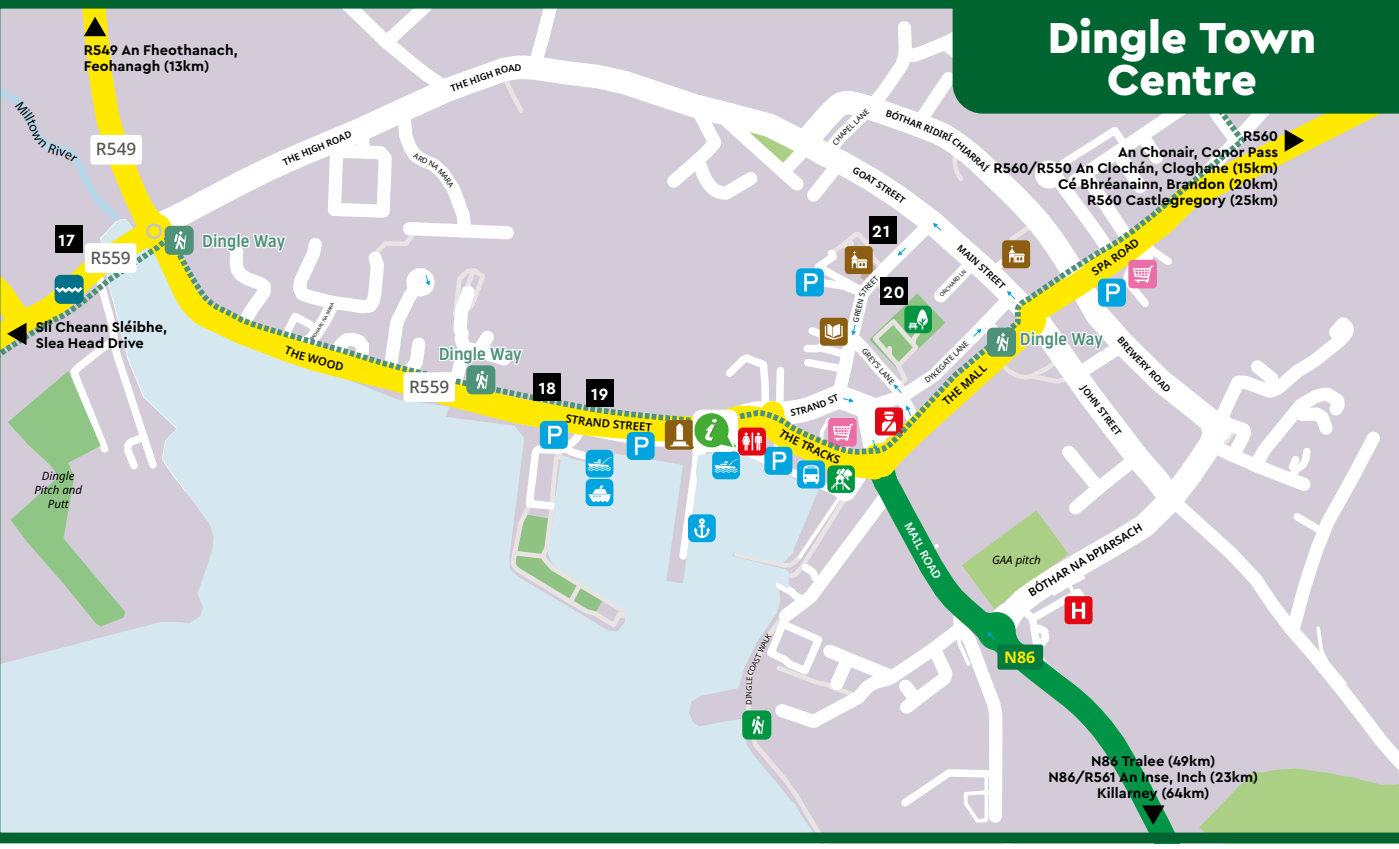

Glanmore Lake, Healy Pass © Chris Hill

The Beara Peninsula
South of Kenmare lies the wild and rugged Beara Peninsula, a 48km finger of land shared between Cork and Kerry. The 137km Beara Peninsula Drive, also known as The Ring of Beara, snakes its way along the endless coastline from Kenmare to County Cork's Dursley Island at its tip and up to Glengarriff village in County Cork with colourful places in between to explore. On the Kerry side, visit Gleninchiquin Park in the heart of the Beara Peninsula or stop for a picnic at Kilmakilloge with fine views over the Kenmare River. The Healy Pass is 12km north of hairpin bends in a rocky terrain, running between Lauragh and Ardglige that enjoys spectacular views and the forest-fringed Glanmore Lake. Part of the Beara-Breifne Way, Ireland's longest waymarked trail, the Beara Way 206km combines stunning coastal scenery along the Cork and Kerry coastline and rugged mountain landscapes with village life dotted in between.

WILD ATLANTIC WAY

SUIĀN ATLANTAIGH FHĀIN

Discover the Wild Atlantic Way route where 2,500km of spectacular coastline awaits! Kerry's section of this world-renowned route has two Signature Discovery Points:

Ionad an Bhlascaoid (The Blasket Centre)
Just off the Dingle Peninsula in Kerry, lie the tranquil Blasket Islands. After many years of hardship and emigration, the last inhabitants of this unique island community finally packed up for the mainland in 1953, leaving behind a way of life full of courage and intrigue. Today, you can discover their story at the Blasket Centre and learn all about this lost community.

Sceilg Mhichíl (Skellig Michael)
The UNESCO World Heritage Site of the Skelligs is made up of two sandstone rocks cutting a striking silhouette as they rise steeply out of the churning Atlantic Ocean. Just 12km off Kerry's Iveragh Peninsula, on a clear day they're close enough to see from the shore, while at certain times of year you can take a boat out to visit them.

As famous for their sacred 1,300-year-old pilgrimage site as they are for their starring role in the Star Wars films, they're an unmissable addition to your trip along the coast.
