Dublin

Discovering Dublin

Ireland's largest city is one of Europe's most intimate capitals, a modern metropolis with a small-town feel. Discover the captivating history of Dublin's fair city which has inspired many great writers, from James Joyce and W.B Yeats to Oscar Wilde and Seamus Heaney, earning it the title of UNESCO City of Literature.

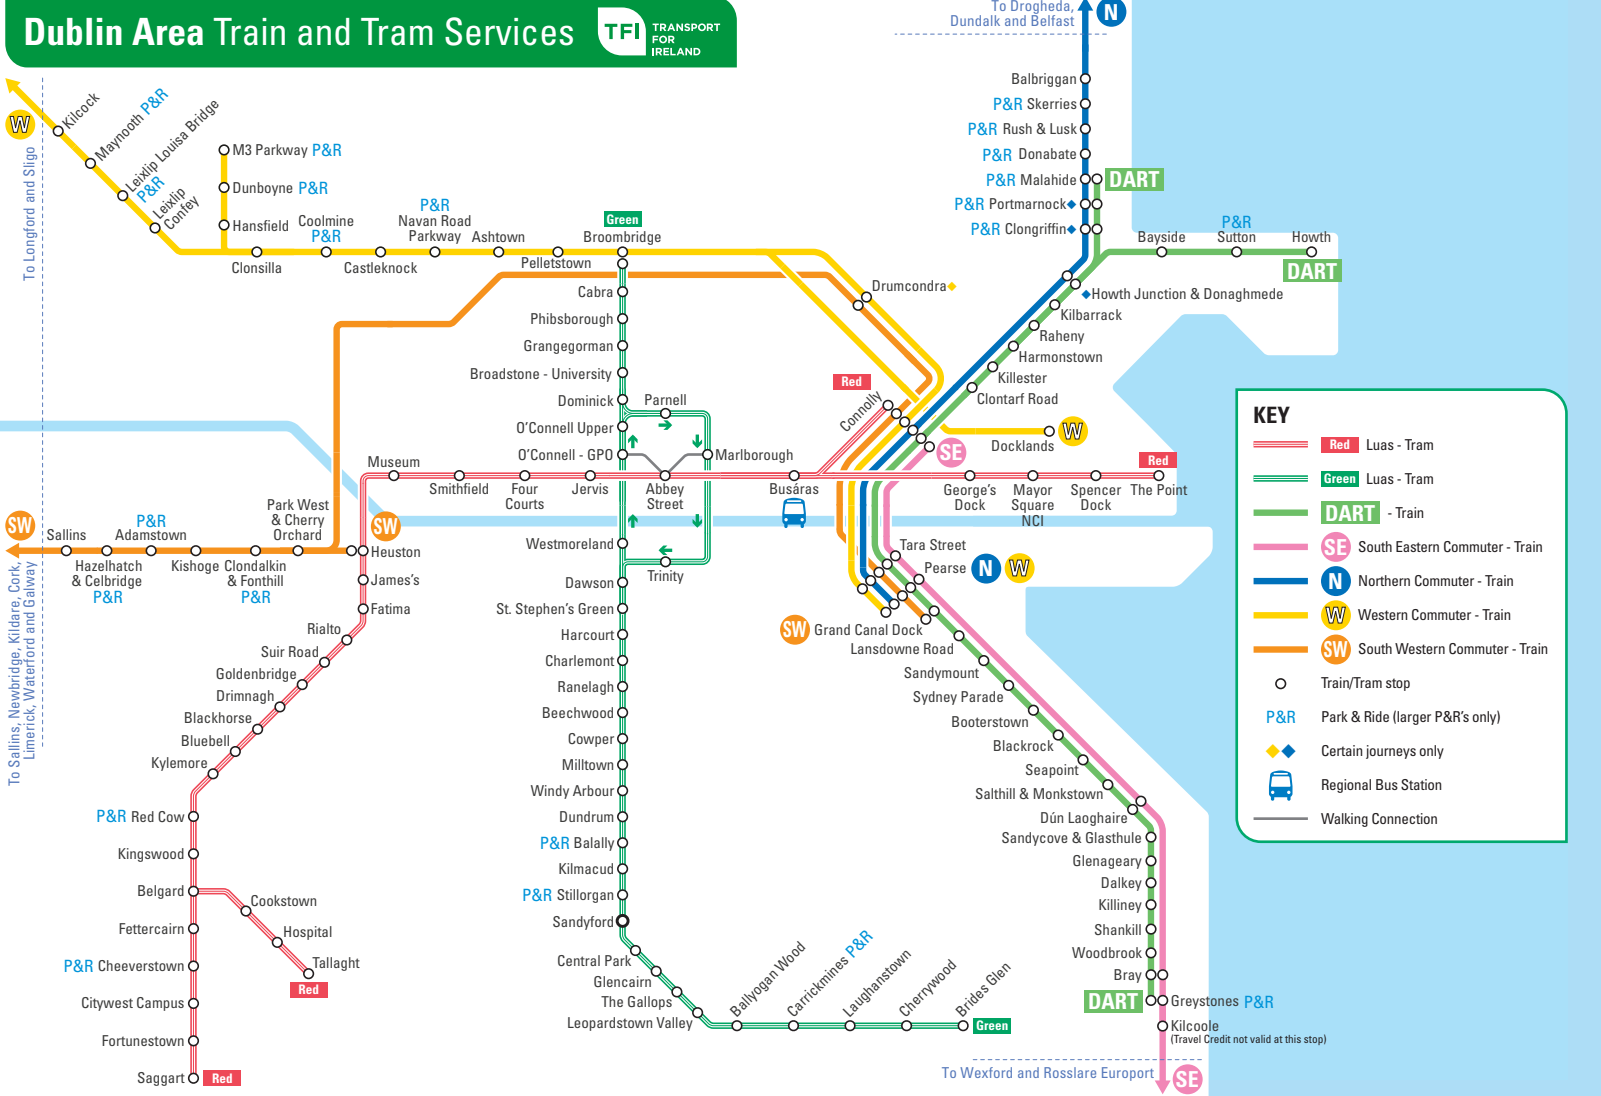

The City Centre offers an exciting mixture of new and old, where you can explore modern glass structures at Grand Canal Dock or marvel at the grandeur of the 18th century Georgian architecture. Stroll down the iconic O'Connell Street, marked by the towering Spire, a common meeting place for friends, or revel in the hubbub of Grafton Street, one of Europe's busiest shopping streets. This is the perfect spot to people-watch or to listen to the city's talented buskers. Experience Dublin from a fresh perspective with boat tours and water sports activities on the River Liffey.

Savour the taste of uisce beatha – Irish whiskey – in one of the many distilleries in Smithfield and the Liberties, nicknamed as The Golden Triangle. Take a visit to the well-known Guinness Storehouse, where you can learn about the brewing of Ireland's famous black stout. Head across the Liffey to visit Phoenix Park, Europe's largest enclosed green space. Here you can see the park's resident herd of fallow deer, or wander past the geometric hedges and vibrant flowers in the gardens of Áras an Uachtaráin, home of the President of Ireland.

Step back in time with a visit to one of Dublin's many museums such as National Museum of Ireland or Dublinia, which tells the tales of Ireland's Viking times. Take in the beauty of classical paintings in the National Gallery of Ireland. Nearby is the world-famous Trinity College, a cobbled masterpiece of Georgian architecture that is also home to Ireland's most important manuscript, the Book of Kells.

Venture closer to the sea and discover Dublin's beautiful bay, lined with beautiful beaches, pretty villages and wonderful seaside walks. Follow the Dublin Coastal Trail, stretching from Balbriggan to Killiney to enjoy the stunning coastline and diverse ecology that has earned the bay the title of UNESCO Biosphere. Whether it's a stroll down the beach at Killiney, a dip at the Forty Foot in Sandycove or a hike along Howth Head, the fresh sea air is sure to rejuvenate the soul. If you're up for a more challenging trek, the Dublin Mountains fringe the southern side of the city, leading up into County Wicklow and the long-distance Wicklow Way.
