Make your funeral wishes known, so your loved ones can give you the send-off you deserve

We know it can be hard to think of life going on without you, and discussing this future with your loved ones isn't always easy. But by planning ahead, you can save your family some stress down the line while making certain that you'll get the funeral that's right for you. If you make your wishes known your loved ones can personalise your funeral, ensuring a special and unique send off when the time comes.

How do I express my funeral wishes?

Every funeral is different, and there are plenty of ways to ensure your send off is personal to you and your loved ones. Included in this pack, you'll find a form with some topics you may want to consider. You can fill this out with as much or as little detail as you would like, and when you're ready, you could either keep it somewhere safe, or share it with your loved ones.

What happens next?

Once you pass on your requests, they should be stored safely until the time of your funeral. They should then be passed to your funeral arranger, who will be able to provide your family with a quote for the costs of the funeral, including your requests.
