The Georgian Building

The Georgian Room

The Art Gallery

The Georgian Building is a newly introduced meeting environment at The Morrison Hotel, spanning two levels of a beautifully restored Georgian building and designed to deliver a premium, purpose-built setting for corporate events. When booking The Georgian Building, organisations benefit from full and private use of the entire building, ensuring discretion, focus, and a fully self-contained meeting experience.

This private access includes the Art Gallery, a light-filled space ideally suited to welcome coffee breaks, working lunches, breakout sessions, and networking receptions, alongside The Georgian Room on the upper level, configured for the main meeting. The Georgian Room offers new layouts supported by high-spec, state-of-the-art AV, enabling seamless presentations, hybrid meetings, and high-impact communications.

Together, these interconnected spaces provide a strategic combination of flexibility, flow, and privacy, making The Georgian Building an ideal solution for executive meetings, leadership off-sites, private conferences, and bespoke corporate programmes.

Halo

Halo provides a distinctive and intimate setting, perfect for private lunches or dinners for up to 50 guests, or a standing cocktail reception for up to 95. It serves as an ideal venue for engagement parties, retirement celebrations, milestone birthdays, and other special occasions, offering a memorable backdrop for any event.

The room features high ceilings that rise to the second floor, a striking Birdman sculpture, and a commanding painting by Clea Van Der Grijn, creating an impressive visual impact. Oversized mirrors and lamps are thoughtfully placed alongside a mix of modern and antique tables, blending classic and contemporary elements. Burnt orange walls and wooden floors add warmth to the space, which can be styled and adapted to suit a wide range of events. This combination of versatility and charm makes Halo an excellent choice for private dining, special celebrations, or corporate events.
