

Name: Fabio

Surname: Guadagnini

Role: Chief Communications Officer

Place of birth: Agordo (Belluno), Italy

Born in Agordo, in Belluno's province, on November 14, 1964, he graduated in Foreign Languages and Literature at IULM University in Milan and, from 1991 to 1999, he worked at Tele+ as sporting journalist, host and Executive Producer, prior to being appointed Managing Editor in charge of non- football related Sports.

In August 1999, he was appointed Managing Editor of the newly born satellite television Stream TV where he dealt extensively with football. In 2003, he actively participated in the start-up of Sky Italia where he served as Deputy Editor at Sky Sport. During his time at Sky he worked as journalist and anchorman as well as executive manager involved in the launch and management of the channel Sky Sport 24. He was also editorial director at Sky Sport HD, prior to leading the Motorsports project for the launch of the thematic channels dedicated to Formula 1 and Moto GP.

In 2013, he was appointed Vice President at Fox Sports where he launched the two satellite sporting channels of the Group and, in 2016, he joined CONI as Director of Communications at Roma 2024 Committee. Fabio Guadagnini is Chief Communication Officer at AC Milan since April 20, 2017.