

Health is the most important thing in life and we can consider ourselves lucky whenever we are in good health. But what about those less fortunate, the ones diagnosed with a life-threatening illness? Every 27 seconds someone somewhere in the world receives the devastating diagnosis of blood cancer. In Germany it's every 12 minutes. A stem cell transplant from a matching donor is often their only chance of survival.

The DKMS Donor Center gGmbH recruits matching stem cell donors for blood cancer patients all over the world and actively supports research to develop the best possible treatment and improve patients' chance of survival. Every euro counts in the fight against blood cancer, as it costs €50 to register each new potential lifesaving donor. These costs are not covered by health insurance companies.

This year, instead of Christmas presents for customers and business partners, we are donating to support the recruitment of more potential lifesavers. Our donation supports the mission of the DKMS, including the registration of new stem cell donors so that more patients worldwide can find their matching donor and receive a second chance at life.

Is there anything better at Christmas than giving the gift of a second chance at life?

We proudly support DKMS!
