

STACEY:

I became a nurse to be there for people. Nurses are the one group of professionals that are always there at people's highest points, at people's lowest points, and getting to be a part of that and to support people through that is an honour and I couldn't imagine doing anything else.

My most proud moment would be quite recently, I had a lady admitted for some rehab, and as well as have a fracture she had a background of terminal cancer and during her admission she had quite a lot of support, mainly emotionally, and when she had left she had actually given a card to all of the staff and wrote me one individually thanking me for all my patience and kindness and said that I was a ray of sunshine coming into the room so getting that was a very proud and emotional moment.
