Discover More

Clifden

Clifden is nestled between the Atlantic Ocean and The Twelve Bens, Connemara’s highest mountain range. The town is a great place to find local crafts or unique gifts. Take a relaxing stroll along the Beach Road to the nearby harbour or along the Dooneen Road stopping by the Owenglen Cascade.

The Sky Road is a 1km circular route that starts from Clifden Town and rises high above the Atlantic Ocean offering spectacular panoramic views. Enjoy the scenic beauty of the rocks, cliffs, valleys and the sea.

Derrigimlagh is located 4km south of Clifden and is one of the Wild Atlantic Way’s Signature Discovery Points. This vast blanket bog is covered by a mosaic of tiny lakes and is the site of two major remarkable events. Today, a 5km looped walk winds its way across the bog where you can enjoy the view of The Twelve Bens.

Connemara National Park

is 12km north of Clifden. The park covers 3,000 hectares of Atlantic heath, mountainous, boggy landscape, wetlands, grasslands and enchanting woodlands. Explore the walking trails at your own pace or set off on a challenging mountain hike towards the summit of Diamond Hill. The stunning vistas from here offer spectacular views over the Connemara countryside and the distant islands of Inishbofin, Inishturk and Inishman.

Inishbofin

is a tidal island 14km north of Clifden at Claddaghduff. The island can be reached by ferry only at high tide by following the directional signs across the strand. Check the tide times on the notice board at the car park before you cross over. Explore the rock pools on the beach or along the Dooneen Road stopping by the Owenglen Cascade.

Inishbofin Visitor Centre and Tea Rooms are renowned for their traditional home-cooked refreshments. Parking is free.

Inishshark

is 15km north of Clifden. The park covers 1,000 acres of scenic mountains, expansive bogs, glorious grasslands and enchanting woodlands. Explore the walking trails at your own pace or set off on a challenging mountain hike towards the summit of Diamond Hill. The stunning vistas from here offer spectacular views over the Connemara countryside and the distant islands of Inishbofin, Inishturk and Inishman.

Diamond Hill

is a tidal island 14km north of Clifden at Claddaghduff. The island can be reached by ferry only at high tide by following the directional signs across the strand. Check the tide times on the notice board at the car park before you cross over. Explore the rock pools on the beach or along the Dooneen Road stopping by the Owenglen Cascade.

Ome Island

is a tidal island 12km north of Clifden at Claddaghduff. The island can be reached by ferry only at high tide by following the directional signs across the strand. Check the tide times on the notice board at the car park before you cross over. Explore the rock pools on the beach or along the Dooneen Road stopping by the Owenglen Cascade.

For more great things to see and do, visit DiscoverIreland.ie or scan this QR code:

COVID-19 advice: Please check the latest travel advice and business opening times before visiting.

For impartial, personal advice and information look out for Tourist Information Centres and businesses that display this icon.

Keep Discovering
Clifden

For more great things to see and do in Clifden, visit DiscoverIreland.ie or scan this QR code.