COUNTY WATERFORD AND EAST CORK

As you make your way west along the coastline, across the mouth of the Blackwater and into East Cork, watching out for a view of the great white tower at Dunmore East, you will enter one of Ireland’s most scenic regions. The friendly and relaxed vibe of the waterside towns is enhanced by the spectacular scenery of the Waterford Greenway, a stretch of pathway along a former railway line which crosses many of the region’s highlights.

A natural setting for adventure

This Eastern seaboard area is undoubtedly one of Ireland’s great outdoor adventure zones. Gaelic football and hurling can be watched and played by the locals, while a short distance away is the world-famous 1916 Rising site at Kilmainham Gaol, Dublin. A visit after dark will give the impression of a different place altogether. You can download your free guide to the Waterford Greenway at www.waterfordgreenway.com

WATERFORD & EAST CORK WATERFORD

WATERFORD & EAST CORK

There are wonders to be uncovered in Waterford & East Cork

Waterford is the longest-established city in Ireland and one of the Great Southern Cities. Its medieval foundation is evidenced by a Medieval Mile that is encapsulated within a walled city. The city centre, though sprawling and modern, is still centred on Store Street, which leads to the cathedral, the custom house and towards the river. There are interesting buildings and public spaces, as well as all the usual modern facilities.

As you move north from the city centre, you will come to the coast, which can be explored by car, bus or bike. The Tramore/Kilkenny coastline is a magnet for families and offers great surfing and play facilities. Waterford City is renowned for its beaches and includes Midleton, Dungourney, Dungarvan, Youghal, and the Hook Peninsula.

The Viking Triangle is home to Waterford Treasures – an extensive programme of itineraries, walking and more – please visit: www.waterfordtreasures.com
