'Look at these!' Hal exclaimed, going to a cabin displaying beautifully painted wooden horses of all sizes. I think Mum would like a red one.' He picked up a wooden horse as big as his hand. 'She can put it on the mantelpiece in her Christmas display.'

While Uncle Nat paid for the horse, and the stall keeper wrapped it in a paper bag, Hal glanced at the next stall, where a woman in blue and red robes was selling carved jewellery made from reindeer antlers. A girl about Hal's age was sitting beside her, also dressed in a blue robe and a red hat. She was playing with the end of one of her long brown plaits and looking bored.

I don't know about you, but I could do with a hot drink,' Uncle Nat said. 'There's a cafe serving drinks from a hatch r mere.

Hal saw two chalkboard menus on the wall either side of the window. One in Swedish, and one in English saying
